Prescription for Crime

I ran across this article recently in a newspaper and found it interesting. This list offered 12 things to take into consideration if one wants to develop delinquency among our children. It was originally presented by William Welch, assistant U.S. attorney general, Denver, Colorado. Guidelines to delinquency:

- 1) Begin in infancy to give him whatever he wants.
- 2) When he uses crude-vulgar words, laugh at him.
- 3) Never give him any spiritual training.
- 4) Always avoid the use of the word "wrong" or "no".
- 5) Always pick up everything he leaves lying around the house - do everything for him.
- 6) Let him read any printed material he gets his hands on, watch any movie or anything on TV.
- 7) Give him all the money he wants.
- 8) Satisfy his every craving for food, drink, comfort. Give immediate gratification to all senses.
- 9) Always take his part against neighbors, teachers, police - even when he is wrong.
- 10) When he gets into trouble, apologize to yourself.
- 11) Be sure you show disrespect for all authority.
- 12) Argue and fight in front of him as much as possible.
